

A scatter plot illustrating the results of a clustering algorithm. The plot shows a large number of data points (represented by open circles) distributed across the coordinate plane. Several distinct clusters of points are visible. The centroids of these clusters are marked with blue plus signs (+). The distribution of points and centroids suggests a multi-modal dataset where the algorithm has successfully identified the centers of the underlying groups.

